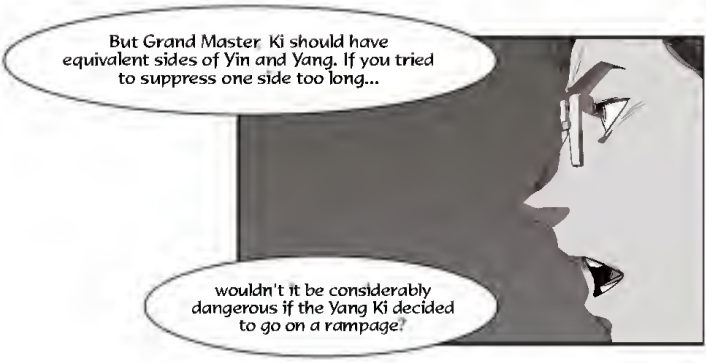
A human's lifespan has its limits. Even if you were favored by the heavens, you'd be able to store a century's worth of Ki at most.

It means that my 500-year-old Ki is not from the strength of a single person.

This Ki that I hold has been passed down to me by the previous masters and their previous masters alike. However, with a great power also comes temptation. They called this the Sagi (Demonic Ki).
The Ki that one possesses is like a wild horse. The greater the force of your Ki, the harder it is to control.
So, I decided to use sixty years of my own Ki to seal the Sagi that the previous masters left behind.

One day, one of you will receive this Ki from me and realize the danger this power holds...
I can only hope that you will remember my teachings...

Yes, Master.



But Grand Master, Ki should have equivalent sides of Yin and Yang. If you tried to suppress one side too long... wouldn't it be considerably dangerous if the Yang Ki decided to go on a rampage?

When that day comes, one of you will have to stop me.

As expected of the Main Family's secret weapon. Though I didn't expect you to overwhelm the Elder that much...

Hurry up and help me!

Help you, huh...?

Instead... how about we 'accidentally' run into the Elder, and through many sacrifices, I killed him. Being the sole survivor, I will bring a great victory to the Main Family. How does that sound?

The Elders will have to believe me.
because the fact that I killed the Branch Elder will remain.

TLN: Na-mu A-mi-ta-bul is a mantra taught for chanting and meditation. It represents and invokes the purest, most powerful energy in the universe. Chanting "Namu Amitabul" enables us to gradually awaken and to identify with whom we really are.

It means that my 500-year-old Ki is not from the strength of a single person.

Really now?
